Publication:	Manchester? c.1850. Printed on cloth in black and red. 580 x 600mm.
Condition:	Some faint toning.

DESCRIPTION:

A scarce map printed on cloth of England, Wales and Southern Scotland with the railways overprinted in red. It shows a line to Plymouth, opened in 1848; and the line from London to Norwich is named the Eastern Counties Railway, before it became the Great Eastern Railway in 1862. The title cartouche features a train crossing a viaduct.

Bradshaw published a smaller map on paper with the same title in 1843.
