The account of a pilgrimage from Venice to Jerusalem by Jean Zuallart (1541-1634) with Philippe de Mérode, baron de Frentzen, setting off in June 1586 and returning in November. His account was first published the following year.

Zuallart's text advises how to prepare for such a journey, describes the places on his route, including Cyprus, and gives a detailed account of Jerusalem and the holy sites.

The plates, engraved by Natale Bonifacio, include plans of Venice (Moretto 36) and Jerusalem (Laor 1170), maps of Italy and Greece, Zante, Cyprus (Baynton-Williams/Scolari 37), the Eastern Mediterranean (used twice, to illustrate the voyage out and the return) and Tripoli.
